

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

TWENTY-SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT.

(BOROUGHES OF MANHATTAN AND THE BRONX.)

During the year ending December 31, 1899, 98,917 prisoners were formally arraigned in the Magistrates' Courts for that portion of the City included within the Boroughs of Manhattan and The Bronx, being the former City of New York, and all of them were fully heard and disposed of except 194, whose cases were pending when the year closed. This, however, represents but a portion of the work of the Magistrates. Equally as many, if not more, cases were investigated upon summonses upon applications for warrants, but which do not go upon record. The hearings upon a summons is just as formal and imposes an equal amount of work upon the Magistrate as if a warrant had been issued and the prisoner actually arrested, and in a large number of these cases the work is twofold greater than in the case of a large number of those actually arrested. But the summons cases do not go upon the records and therefore do not appear in the Annual Report. It is quite safe to say that the twelve Magistrates heard and decided 200,000 cases during the year. They investigated the sufficiency of sureties in each case where a bondsman was presented and 3,194 bonds were approved, but the records do not show how many were actually rejected; in many instances several bondsmen are presented and examined before one is found who meets the statutory requirement.

Of the arrests actually made, 93,863 were without process and 5,054 were upon warrants. After listening to the evidence, 37,607 prisoners were discharged and 61,116 were either held for trial at General or Special Sessions, or were summarily convicted and sentenced by the magistrates.

As compared with 1898, the figures show a falling off of 2,294 cases, chiefly due to the ordinance passed by the Municipal Assembly and approved by the Mayor which divested the Magistrates of jurisdiction to fine and imprison for non-payment, persons engaged in business requiring a municipal license who willfully or otherwise violate city ordinances. This took away from the Magistrates all power over push-cart and other peddlers, junk dealers, hackmen, dealers in second-hand articles, etc., etc.

The Magistrates ceased to proceed with this class of cases about the middle of October, and a computation for the balance of the year upon a basis of the arrests for the preceding portion gives 2,200 cases, and practically accounts for the shortage.

Of the total number of prisoners arraigned, 77,127 were males and 21,790 were females; and compared with 1898, the male prisoners were less by 5,322 and the female prisoners increased 3,028. The volume of female prisoners in the Second District (Jefferson Market) was 2,859 and in the Fourth District (Yorkville) 2,496 in excess of 1898, and fell off 2,055 in the Third District (Essex Market).

In the volume of business transacted the increase or diminution in the various districts was as follows: First District decreased 1,438; Second District increased 3,472; Third District decreased 7,382; Fourth District increased 4,971; Fifth District decreased 890; Sixth District increased 41, and Seventh District decreased 1,068.

There was a falling off of female prisoners in every district except the Second and Fourth, in each of which there had been more than the usual arrests of women plying a disorderly calling in the public streets.

Of the total arrests, in these two Boroughs of the city, females constituted a trifle over twenty-two per centum; in 1898 they made up eighteen and one-half per centum.

The figures for the year present some other interesting contrasts. The number arrested for the various acts denominated as felonies was considerably greater than for any previous year and exceeded the record arrests for 1898 by 1,244; on the other hand, the arrests for crimes classified as misdemeanors were smaller in number than for any year since 1885.

Grand Larceny cases were 610 more than in 1898; charges of Cruelty to Animals were less than in any year since 1889; keeping Disorderly Houses, 57 less than in 1898, were less than in any year since 1885; Excise arrests fell off 326, as compared with 1898, and were exceeded each year since 1884; Keeping Gambling Houses were less than in any year since 1885; arrests for violating the Lottery Law were 36, as compared with 141 of the previous year, 599 for 1897, 611 for 1896 and 682 for 1895; there were 284 arrests for violating the Sanitary Code, as compared with 519 in 1898, and were less than in any year since 1886; Vagrancy complaints were less by 1,875 than in 1898, and the convictions were less than in any year since 1880; Sabbath Law complaints upon which 262 arrests were made, were 79 less than the previous year; there were 951 arrests in 1897, 802 in 1896 and 868 in 1895.

The summary jurisdiction of the Magistrates was exercised in 75,935 cases; deducting from the total arrests 2,345 Suspicious Persons and 120 Fugitives from Justice leaves 20,517 requiring a final hearing at General and Special Sessions, provided there had been in each case probable cause to believe the prisoners guilty of the offense charged, which was true in 8,983 instances, as compared with 9,515 for the previous year; 3,869 cases were sent to General Sessions and 5,114 to Special Sessions.

Including 75,935 cases of summary jurisdiction, it will be seen, therefore, that ninety per cent. of all the cases arising in the police courts were finally disposed of by the Magistrates. There were 51,247 convictions by the Magistrates. The great bulk of these cases of summary jurisdiction comes under the classification of disorderly conduct, which since 1892 in the police court comparative tables includes conduct tending to a breach of the peace, intoxication, soliciting for the purpose of prostitution, permitting vicious dogs to run at large, some of the less aggravated cases of wife beating, and various other acts of infrequent occurrence.

The arrests for simple intoxication for the year were 18,846, and for the previous year 18,691; for intoxication and disorderly conduct combined in one charge the arrests were this year 3,157, last year 4,290, and for disorderly conduct alone this year 34,666, last year 33,434, making in the aggregate for the present year 56,669 cases, in which 37,937 convictions were obtained, and last year 56,415 cases, of which there were 39,919 convictions.

From the fines imposed by the Magistrates in the exercise of their summary jurisdiction which, with the exception of 1897, was the largest amount collected in any year from fines imposed in the police courts. The amount collected was $18,137 more than the total salaries of the twelve Magistrates. It is not possible to state, from the compiled statistics, the number of individuals from whom fines were collected so as to get the average amount paid by each, but it does appear that 15,836 persons paid $67,721.10 to the Police Clerks, averaging nearly $4 28 each.

It has been customary to compile statistics as to the nativity of the individuals only who are held for trial or convicted in the Police Courts. The nativity of each person arrested, however, is taken and made a matter of record. As to those held for trial or convicted, in comparison with 1898, the United States gained 1,834, Ireland lost 2,274, Germany lost 1,613, England lost 742, Scotland lost 130, France gained 162, Italy lost 1,197, Russia lost 1,426, Greece lost 656, and all other countries lost 143.

There was an increase of 580 over last year of persons reported black among those held for trial or summarily convicted; the number being 2,516.

The usual comparative tables for ten years last past have been made out, and are as follows:

The total number of prisoners arraigned during the year was 98,917—77,127 males and 21,790 females—being a decrease, as compared with the preceding year, of 2,294. There were held for trial or summarily convicted 45,554 males and 15,562 females, making a total of 61,116, as compared with 67,201 last year. 194 cases were pending when the courts closed December 31, 1899.

SUSPICIOUS PERSONS.

Many persons are arrested under suspicious circumstances, such as well-known criminals mysteriously loitering about the streets at night, or frequenting crowded places, or persons having property in their possession for which they can give no good account, nor of themselves. Frequently such an arrest is the first step in the detection of some crime in which (after investigation), if the proper complainant is found, a formal complaint is taken and the prisoner is held for trial. In many instances such an arrest prevents the commission of crime. During the year the total number of such cases amounted to 2,334.
